

KOORIE HERITAGE TRUST
Annual Report 2018 – 2019

The Koorie Heritage Trust acknowledges and pays respect to the Traditional Custodians of Melbourne on whose lands we are located.

Warning: Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islanders are advised that this document may contain the names and/or images of people who have passed away.

Terminology: the word Koorie is commonly used to describe Aboriginal people of south-eastern Australia; however, we recognise the diversity of Aboriginal people living throughout Victoria including Koories and other Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander (ATSI) people from around Australia. In parts of the report, the terms Aboriginal and Koorie include all people of ATSI descent.

Chairperson's Report

Wominjeka

I am pleased to present the Koorie Heritage Trust's Annual Report outlining our activities and operations in the 12 months from 1 July 2018 to 30 June 2019.

At the Koorie Heritage Trust, we support, promote and celebrate the diversity of Aboriginal Victorian peoples and communities. Our vision is to live in a society where Aboriginal culture and history are a fundamental part of Victorian life. Our values are Respect, Honesty, Reciprocity and Curiosity.

We provide a unique environment rich in culture, heritage and history, which welcomes and encourages all people to come together in the spirit of learning and reconciliation. I wish to especially acknowledge the support of all members of the Koorie and broader Indigenous communities in Victoria who have visited the Trust or attended one of our many programs during the year. You are crucial to our future success.

Our activities in 2018-19 would not have been possible without the support of the Victorian Government including The Hon. Martin Foley MP, Minister for Creative Industries, Natalie Hutchins MP, Minister for Aboriginal Affairs (until December 2018) and Gavin Jennings MP, Minister for Aboriginal Affairs (from December 2018). I wish to particularly acknowledge the support of Andrew Abbott, Chief Executive of Creative Victoria and Deputy Secretary Creative, Sport and Visitor Economy in the Department of Jobs, Precincts and Regions, and his staff, particularly Jane Crawley, Executive Director, Arts Investment.

I also acknowledge the funding support provided to us by Creative Victoria's Organisational Investment Program and Aboriginal Victoria's Community Support Fund, which fund our Koorie Family History Service, our Oral History Program and our operational activities.

I also wish to acknowledge the support we receive from the Federal Ministry for the Arts' Indigenous Visual Arts Industry Support and Indigenous Languages and Arts Programs. I also acknowledge the invaluable support we receive from the City of Melbourne's Triennial Arts Grants Program, which provides much needed support to our ongoing exhibitions program and enables us to continue to plan and deliver innovative long-term visual arts exhibitions.

We continue to maintain our registration as a tax-deductible gift recipient. As a not-for-profit organisation, we rely on the wide network and generosity of our many friends and supporters to enable us to continue the important work we do to bridge the gap between Koories and the wider community and contribute to the reconciliation agenda.

I wish to also acknowledge and thank my fellow Board members Shannon Faulkhead (Deputy Chair), Peter Nash (Treasurer), Genevieve Grieves, Mick Harding, Indi Clarke, Tim Kanoa (until February, 2019), and Lindy Blashki (until October, 2018).

I wish to also acknowledge and thank Tom Mosby our CEO and his staff for their commitment and dedication in making the Koorie Heritage Trust at Federation Square such a success, and whose hard work have contributed to the outstanding financial outcome for 2018-19.

Gnokan Danna Murra Kor-ki, (Give Me Your Hand My Friend) and let us celebrate together the history, culture and peoples of Aboriginal Victoria.

Report of the Chief Executive Officer

Wominjeka

I am pleased to report on the operations of the Koorie Heritage Trust Inc for the 2018-19 financial year.

During 2018-19, we presented eight exhibitions that celebrated the unique creative talent we have in Victoria.

Our exhibitions program included the 6th Koorie Art Show, our annual showcase of Victorian Indigenous art talent in partnership with Creative Victoria. This year, the prizes on offer totalled $20,000, including prizes generously sponsored by Creative Victoria, the Metro Tunnel Creative Program, Viva Energy Australia, RMIT University, and Lendlease. We also launched Blak Design Matters, the first survey exhibition of Australian Indigenous design.

Throughout the year, our exhibitions are supported by an innovative series of public programs consisting of workshops, artist talks and symposiums, either exclusively for Community or open to the general public, including our end-of-year Koorie Krismas.

We continue to build on our unique collections of Aboriginal art and cultural objects from Victoria. Our collections are significant, extensive and irreplaceable, and comprise pre-contact, historic and contemporary items. The collections provide a tangible link that connects our community to the past and assists in building Aboriginal identity and pride into the future.

Our Koorie Family History Service continued their invaluable work, assisting members of the Stolen Generations and the Victorian Koorie Community to trace their family trees and family history.

Our Education Team continued to deliver outstanding cultural educational experiences and services to schools, corporates, the public sector and not-for-profit organisations, as well as the general public.

Our retail outlet, shop KOORIE, sells products designed and/or crafted by Victorian Aboriginal artists and craftspeople. Through shop KOORIE, we directly support the south-eastern Australian Aboriginal community, benefitting from a retail model that enables financial return to creative practitioners. All profits from the shop are used to support the Trust, particularly our core programs and services.

In addition to the key multi-year funding support we receive from Creative Victoria, Aboriginal Victoria, the City of Melbourne and the Federal Ministry for the Arts. I also acknowledge the invaluable support received from our generous sponsors and supporters, including: Gandel Philanthropy; Helen McPherson Smith Trust; Lendlease; Melbourne University; Metro Tunnel Creative Program; RMIT University; Robert Salzer Foundation Acquisition Fund; the Vicki Standish Foundation; and, Viva Energy Australia.

I am particularly pleased to acknowledge the strength and quality of our programs and services reflected in over 65,000 visitors being welcomed to the Trust in 2018-19. I wish to thank and acknowledge the work of Trust staff and our Board of Management who provide me with outstanding support and guidance throughout the year and who have contributed to this outcome.

Programs and Services

Education

The Koorie Heritage Trust's Education programs include guided walking tours; Building Aboriginal Cultural Competency training offered within the framework of professional development for all sectors; and, professional development and Indigenous curriculum support for educators.

Walking Tours

The Koorie Heritage Trust's popular guided walking tours of the Birrarung Marr (River of Mists/Yarra River), and other sites of cultural significance, are highly successful reflected in the number of schools, organisations, corporate and government sector bookings, and increasing participation number of visitors participating in tours offered to the general public. As a result, in 2018-19, the Trust expanded the tours from only Thursdays and Fridays to include Wednesdays and Saturdays. Almost 8700 people undertook one of the 380 tours the Koorie Heritage Trust offered in 2018-19.

In 2018-19, we also entered into partnerships with the Arts Centre Education Programs, the MCC MCG tours, and City of Melbourne to conduct joint tours.

The Education team also conducted tours for high-profile visitors, including AFL Clubs such as North Melbourne and The Western Bulldogs. Of particular note, the team conducted a tour for the teams participating in the NRL Indigenous All Stars match, which included the Indigenous All Stars men and women teams as well as both Maori teams.

The Koorie Heritage Trust's Education Manager, with the support of Visit Victoria, developed the Trust's tours to target the domestic, interstate and international markets. As part of this initiative, the Education Manager completed the International Tourism Mentoring Program to enable the tours to be considered a Discovering Aboriginal Experiences product by Tourism Australia. This will increase the international reach and marketing opportunities for the Trust.

Building Aboriginal Cultural Competency Training

The Education team continued to provide leadership in Building Aboriginal Cultural Competency (BACC).

In 2018-19, the team delivered 175 BACC training programs including 67 full-day and 97 half-day programs, and 10 short version workshops.

The team also conducted a number of short cultural presentations and guest speaker roles for corporate businesses and Government.

During 2018-19, the team was successful with a number of tender applications and the renewal of contracts for the delivery of BACC training, including with the Victorian Public Sector Commission, the Department of Health and Human Services, Beyond Blue, NAB, Swinburne University, and The Walter and Eliza Hall Institute. The team also maintained relationships with a number of key organisations including the Australian College of Emergency Medicine; the Royal Australian College of General Practitioners; VIVA Energy; Box Hill Institute; and, the Royal Australian College of Surgeons.

Thanks so much for the warm welcome and guided tour you gave Dolorosa, Renaid, and Andrew during their recent visit to Melbourne. They had a wonderful and inspiring time. I've heard back from them and from the Art Centre board members and all were so pleased with what they gained from the visit – which was always meant to be fun as well as professional development. The visit to the Koorie Heritage Trust was both of these.

Building Cultural Safety in the Workplace

In addition to the Koorie Heritage Trust's highly successful Building Aboriginal Cultural Competency training program, in 2018-19, the Education team also introduced a new program: Building Cultural Safety in the Workplace. This half-day workshop supports the creation and maintenance of culturally safe workplaces and is intended as a complement the Trust's BACC program.

Other Initiatives

In 2018-19, the Education team also introduced a new service for clients that provides advice on the development and implementation of their Reconciliation Action Plan. Clients include cohealth and Swimming Victoria.

The team also continued with outreach programs for schools and educators that include professional development and Indigenous curriculum support as well as a number of pre-school educator incursion programs.

I wanted to provide some feedback re a PD session run at RMIT by Bernadette Atkinson. This was by far the best training of its type I have attended in my ten years in Australia. Bernadette was a great facilitator, and delivered the material in a way that was very engaging. I will provide this feedback internally ... but I wanted to also send feedback directly!

I just wanted to say thank you so much for our training day yesterday. And please pass on our special thanks as a group to Tim, our facilitator. He was generous, open and attentive throughout the day, and managed to be funny and warm while also enabling us to reflect on the confronting history (and present) of colonisation. He created a safe space for difficult discussions, and I know his impact will be felt by all who attended for a long time. As proof of this, one of our participants has already written a blog post about the day, which you can read here:

materials relating to Victorian Indigenous art, culture and history.

Loans and Requests

In 2018-19, the Koorie Heritage Trust loaned collection items to the National Portrait Gallery, National Gallery of Victoria, No Vacancy Gallery, City of Melbourne, and University of Melbourne.

An exhibition of Oral History films of Gunditjmara community members was launched at the Warrnambool Art Gallery in Gunditjmara Country at the end of July, 2018. It included the films of Uncle Andy Alberts, Aunt Christine Saunders, Aunt Bronwyn Razem, and Uncle Robbie Lowe Snr. The exhibition was a success with the local community.

The Collections team also received and provided permission for image reproduction of collection items.

Collection Valuation

In 2018-19, the Collections team undertook a valuation of the Koorie Heritage Trust's collections for both insurance and fair value purposes. The valuation project is now complete.

Oral History

In 2018-19, the Oral History team worked with a specialist digital conservator to assess the Oral History collection and create a draft digitisation plan. This plan includes advice on digitisation, quality checking, storage and backing up of digitised files, and upgrading the storage of physical items.

From this plan, the team worked in partnership with the Australian Centre for the Moving Images to digitise the Aboriginal Victoria collection of reel-to-reel films. These films were viewed using ACMI's technology to assess whether they contained useful Victorian content for the collection which would then be digitised.

The Oral History team continued to record Elders and Koorie community members. New recordings are chosen according to seniority of the subject, location, and related projects occurring at the Koorie Heritage Trust. In 2018-19, the team recorded the following Elders: Uncle "Boydie" Turner, Aunt Esther Kirby, Uncle Colin Walker and Aunt Barb Egan. In addition, the team worked on a recording with Uncle Greg Muir to be launched as part of an exhibition of Uncle Greg's artworks. The team also worked with Aboriginal Community Elders Services (ACES) to record stories of Elders who are residents of the facility.

The Oral History team also conducted oral history recordings in Warrnambool with local Elders and community members, in a joint project with the Warrnambool Art Gallery. The team spent time with Uncle Robbie Lowe Snr, Aunt Christina Saunders, Uncle Andy Alberts and Aunt Bronwyn Razem. The stories from this collaboration were shown in an exhibition at the Warrnambool Art Gallery.

The Koorie Heritage Trust promotes its Oral History Collection via its social media platforms by uploading new films, as they are recorded, to Facebook, Instagram and Vimeo. This has received increased positive engagement and awareness of the Oral History program.

All Oral History recordings are made in accordance with the Koorie Heritage Trust's collections policy as it relates to the collecting of oral histories. The Koorie Heritage Trust is committed to ensuring that audio visual material is collected in a culturally sensitive, professional and ethical manner. The Koorie Heritage Trust refers to the Oral History Association of Australia's Guidelines of Ethical Practice (Oral History Handbook, Beth Robertson, 2000) to ensure that the rights and responsibilities of interviewees and interviewers are clear to all parties.

The Koorie Heritage Trust acknowledges Viva Energy Australia's generous support of the Oral History program which contributes to ensuring that the Trust collects and preserves the voices and oral histories of Victorian Aboriginal elders for future generations. The Trust also acknowledges the elders who have generously agreed to have their voices and stories recorded.

Reference Library

The Koorie Heritage Trust's reference library contains over 4,000 items including published and unpublished manuscripts, theses, articles, books, brochures, flyers, catalogues, posters, DVDs, CD-Roms and more relating to Aboriginal Victoria/south-eastern Australia. The library is available for use upon request.

Currently, the library catalogue is only accessible at the Koorie Heritage Trust via the Trusts collection management software. This requires the Collections team to look up items and assist all researchers and community members to access the library, which is time consuming. In 2018-19, the Collections team prepared the reference library collection for uploading to TROVE, Australia's online national library and collection database. To prepare the collection for upload, the team undertook an inventory of the library to update the Trust's digital catalogue to ensure it conforms to national library standards, and assigned the Dewey Decimal Classification system to each item. This inventory and update is now complete with the upload to occur in 2019-20.

Conservation

The Koorie Heritage Trust's collections continue to be managed and preserved according to best practice standards in order to maintain Museums Australia Accreditation. The Trust's collection storage and exhibition spaces are monitored daily for environmental, pest, and security risks. In 2018-19, the Collections team undertook conservation treatment on possum and kangaroo skin cloaks in the Trust's collection and arranged for offsite treatment of collection paintings.

Deaccessioning

On request from Uncle Jim Berg, the Koorie Heritage Trust deaccessioned and transferred items held by the Trust in Uncle Jim's name to Museum Victoria. The collection included artefacts, paintings, photographs, publications and personal papers.

Exhibitions

The Koorie Heritage Trust's exhibitions program facilitates the sharing of Victorian Aboriginal art and supports emerging and established Victorian Aboriginal artists. The Trust aims to present a well-rounded exhibitions schedule that comprises a variety of experiences and stories. The Trust's exhibitions program includes a range of emerging, mid-career and established artists, and cultural practitioners from a range of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities within Victoria, expressing a range of themes and stories through a range of artistic practices and mediums.

It is also the aim of the Koorie Heritage Trust's exhibitions program to promote the Trust's collections of artworks and objects, oral histories, and photographic archives through the exhibitions program.

In 2018-19, the Koorie Heritage Trust exhibited the works of over 180 individual Victorian Aboriginal artists and presented 40 public programs.

Temporary Exhibitions

The following major exhibitions were presented in the Koorie Heritage Trust's temporary exhibitions gallery in 2018-19.

Koorie Art Show: Kids and Youth Awards
8 December 2018 – 24 February 2019

To complement the Koorie Art Show, in 2018-19 the Koorie Heritage Trust launched the inaugural Koorie Art Show: Kids and Youth with associated awards. The theme for the show was My Story, with entrants asked to explore their story, whether it involved family, community, their dreams, things they love, school or friends. Winners were announced at the Koorie Art Show community day on 8 December, 2018.

The Koorie Heritage Trust acknowledges the Victorian Aboriginal Child Care Agency for their generous partnership support of the Koorie Art Show: Kids and Youth.

In addition to the above exhibitions, the Koorie Heritage Trust also presented two temporary exhibitions as part of the Trust's Fostering Koorie Art and Culture Koorie Heritage Trust Residency, generously supported through funds provided by the Australian Ministry for the Arts Indigenous Languages and Arts Program. The purpose of the residency program was to provide an Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander artist residing in Victoria with the opportunity to develop and exhibit a significant body of work with an accompanying catalogue and series of public programs.

As part of the Koorie Heritage Trust's annual exhibitions program, the Trust also aim to showcase its collections of artworks and objects, oral histories, and photographic archives. To this end, the Trust's Level 3 open storage cabinets, drawers, walls and the canoe table enables the Trust to present a revolving curated selection of items from the Trust's collections. The display cabinets serving as dividing walls in the public rooms, enables the Trust to showcase additional collection items, which have proven to be a drawcard attracting venue hire clients and room users.

The Koorie Heritage Trust also incorporated the use of children's labels as part of the Trust's exhibition displays. The Koorie Heritage Trust acknowledges its partnership with the National Gallery of Victoria in developing these labels, and particularly Kate Ryan, Truby and Florence Williams curator of Children's Programs, for her generous support and mentorship.

As part of their support of the Josh X Muir exhibition, the Metro Tunnel Creative Program collaborated with the artist to display his artwork on Metro Tunnel public hoardings in the Melbourne CBD. Similarly, the Metro Tunnel Creative Program collaborated with Kelly Koumalatsos, winner of the Metro Tunnel Creative Program 2D Award from the Koorie Art Show, to develop a public hoarding design based on her art.

Public Programs

The Koorie Heritage Trust's annual program of public workshops, talks, performances and events enhance the Trust's exhibitions program and serve to engage Trust audiences, particularly the Victorian Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities.

In 2018-19, the Public Program team held 40 events (either exclusively for the Aboriginal Community or open to the general public), school holidays programs, workshops, collections, exhibitions, and related talks and tours. The Trust's partnerships with key cultural organisations and festivals included:

- As part of NAIDOC Week 2018 and in partnership with the Australian Centre for the Moving Images, the Koorie Heritage Trust presented a program of the stories and art of South East Australia's first peoples with Yarn Strong Sista, as well as a unique interactive animated artwork conceived and created by Yorta Yorta/Gunditjmara/Barkinji artist Josh Muir with animation by Kate Matthews.
- In partnership with Open House Melbourne and Indigenous Architecture and Design Victoria (IADV), the Koorie Heritage Trust presented Sites of Significance in Kulin Melbourne: A Walking Tour that took in sites of significant cultural heritage, contemporary Indigenous architecture and design, commemorative markers, local Aboriginal organisations and important historic and political sites throughout the City of Melbourne.
- In partnership with Melbourne Fringe Festival, the Koorie Heritage Trust held a First Nations all-night dance party set to paint the city blak, featuring a non-stop line-up of contemporary music from First Nations artists. This event was a celebration of the enduring legacy of First Nations art and music and featured DRMNGNW (Neil Morris), beats from Pyemairrenner musician DJ KYAANZ (Kalyani Mumtaz), and a set from Tongberang'ingarra accompanied by stunning projections by artist Josh Muir.

- In partnership with Signal, the City of Melbourne's creative studio for young people, the Koorie Heritage Trust presented Splash X Icon, a creative workshop with artist Josh Muir programmed to coincide with the exhibition Josh X Muir.

The Public Program team also organised a number of general workshops, events and conversations:

- First Reborn runway show by Jirra Models; a celebration of the rebirth of First Peoples culture in a contemporary fashion runway show presented for Melbourne Fashion Week. This event showcased fashion by Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities from across Australia utilising traditional methods of bush dyeing.
- A behind the scene design tour with artists Maree Clarke and Marlene Scerri discussing design objects from the Koorie Heritage Trust's collection.
- Maitiu Ward from Foreground News in conversation with Rueben Berg, Victoria's first Aboriginal Water Commissioner.
- Weaving circle with artist and Koorie Heritage Trust cultural guide Donna Blackall introducing participants to traditional Victorian weaving techniques.

As part of the Koorie Heritage Trust's school holiday programs, the Public Program team presented its fourth annual Koorie Krismas in partnership with Federation Square, celebrating all things Koorie. Koorie Krsimas was a day of free family activities, live music and workshops with a special appearance by Koorie Klaus. Visitors were also able to purchase the perfect Christmas gift from the Koorie Krismas Market, a new initiative to complement Koorie Krismas, which showcased local art, craft, design, and bush foods from the Victorian Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities.

The Public Program team also continued to deliver the Trust's successful school holiday programs including:

- emu egg carving with Aunty Lucy Williams Connelly
- Ngarrda (Dance) Workshop with Djirri Djirri Dance Group
- Photography Workshop with artist Peta Clancy
- collage making with artist Peter Waples-Crowe
- badge making with artist Erika Waulu, as part of the Koorie Heritage Trust's NAIDOC week programming

In addition to the general school holiday programs, the Public Program team facilitated school holiday programs specifically for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander children and young people including:

- Two separate marngrook (possum skin ball) making workshops with artist and Koorie Heritage Trust educator Bernadette Atkinson. 'Marngrook' is from the Gunditjmara language meaning 'game ball'. Elements of AFL are believed to originate from a local traditional game that was played with a marngrook. As part of the workshop, participants learned about the history of marngrook.
- A weaving workshop with Janet Bromley using recycled materials. Janet was the winner of the Koorie Art Show 2018 Creative Victoria Award for Excellence in Any Media.
- A banner making session in preparation for the NAIDOC 2018 march.

The Public Program team also facilitated a series of professional development sessions specifically for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander artists and craftspeople, including:

- Growing retail/wholesale products business for Aboriginal community in partnership with Small Business Victoria and The Australian Retailers Association. The workshop focused on developing products for small-scale retailing wholesaling, including export.

- How to run a workshop covering topics on developing a workshop idea, pricing, running facilitating a workshop and advice on how to share as well as protect culture.
- Blak Writing Skillshare workshop for First Nations critical writers (published and unpublished, emerging and established) facilitated by MPavilion's Aboriginal Writer in Residence, Maddee Clark.
- A round table discussion and Q&A with Aboriginal artists Hayley Miller-Baker and Steven Rhall on artist marketing, branding and online presence, including setting up a website and social media engagement.

Finally, the Public Program team also facilitated a number of general Aboriginal Community-only workshops and events, including:

- A workshop on painting skateboard decks using mixed media with artist Tricia Van Der Kuyp aka 'Vandal'. Tricia is a Melbourne based stencil, spray canner and sharpie marker artist.
- A weaving workshop with Aunty Sandra Aitkin and Melissa Aitkin and a separate workshop with Aunty Clair Bates.
- An emu feather earring workshop and the story of three message sticks with Aunty Marilynne Nicholls.
- A one-off fabric printing workshop, as part of Blak Design Matters, with members of the Bábbarra Women's Centre in Arnhem Land (the Centre also ran a workshop for the general public).
- A community-only behind the scenes tour of the Koorie Heritage Trust's collection storeroom.

The Koorie Heritage Trust also created a new Indigenous kids activity sheet which formed part of the National Gallery of Victoria's Kids Summer Festival 2019.

During 2018-19, the Koorie Heritage Trust was also fortunate to receive funding support from the following Trusts and Foundations that will support the Trust's public programs in 2019-20:

- Ian Potter Foundation to support Blak Design Matters: Fostering Indigenous Design Sovereignty, a project to support Victorian Indigenous designers to be delivered over four years.
- Krystyna Campbell-Pretty.

The Koorie Heritage Trust acknowledges the community speakers, artists, craftspeople and workshop facilitators who generously imparted their cultural knowledge as part of the Trust's public programs in 2018-19 as well as our collaborators and partners.

As a proud Aboriginal woman, I believe the more we learn about our Indigenous ancestors in Australia, the more we can help people understand the country that we live on and the importance of maintaining a sustainable way of life for all Australians, and future generations to come.

Koorie Family History Service

The Trust's Koorie Family History Service (KFHS) team provides a confidential, client-based, genealogical research service for Stolen Generations survivors and their families, and the Victorian Koorie Community.

The KFHS team acknowledge that the personal information clients entrusts to the team may be sensitive and, therefore, the team maintain the strictest level of confidentiality in accordance with Privacy Laws.

Client Requests

In 2018-19, the KFHS received a record number of 386 new requests for family trees and family history information.

At the end of the 2018-19 financial year, the KFHS team was actively researching 693 client requests, and had completed research on a further 224 requests with a further 402 requests awaiting activation once the client application forms are completed and returned.

Of the 693 requests being actively researched, 166 were from members of the Stolen Generations, 180 were family tree requests from Koorie Community members, 321 were family history requests from individuals wanting to trace possible Aboriginal heritage, and 26 requests were from clients in custody.

Family History Workshops

During Family History Month in August 2018, the KFHS team was involved in the State Library of Victoria's inaugural Aboriginal Family History Day and the Who's Your Mob? Family History Workshop at the University of Melbourne.

The KFHS team also held a family history workshop at the Ravenhall Correctional Centre, and hosted two additional family history workshops at the Koorie Heritage Trust for the Victorian Aboriginal Child Care Agency (VACCA) Kinship Program workers, and students from the Australian Catholic University's Jim-baa-yer Indigenous Higher Education Unit.

The KFHS team provided a family history information session for the Social and Emotional Well-being (SEWB) State-wide Forum at the Koorie Heritage Trust.

On 13th February 2019, the KFHS team supported a National Apology event in Melbourne and Geelong, with two staff members attending each. On 31st May 2019, the team attended the 14th Annual Victorian Aboriginal Remembrance Service at the Shrine, which honours Aboriginal men and women who have served, and continue to serve, in the military.

I have lived much of my life without knowing my family history – it was either unavailable, invisible or silent. I am not sure I can articulate or quantify how much that has impacted me and what my life would be.

The Koorie Heritage Trust Family History Unit provided me with a family tree but I think it gave me more than the people and pieces, names and dates of my family history.

It gave me a rich and sometimes confronting story to tell my son. It gave me a place to begin finding a sense of belonging.

It gave me hope and a chance to connect with family, country and culture. What it gave me has without doubt changed my life.
Testimonial from Amanda

shop KOORIE

At shop KOORIE, we stock products that are designed and/or crafted in Victoria by Koorie artists and craftspeople as well as the broader Victorian Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities.

Items for sale are authentic south-eastern Australian Aboriginal designed and/or crafted products. It is also an integrated part of the Koorie Heritage Trust's educational experience; an opportunity that enables visitors to learn of the uniqueness of Victorian Aboriginal peoples, cultures and communities through art, craft and design.

shop KOORIE allows the Koorie Heritage Trust to make a significant contribution to improving the outcomes of Victorian Aboriginal communities by developing and improving the knowledge, understanding, appreciation and practice of Indigenous arts, while providing an income for artists and craftspeople. The product range represents diverse, contemporary and strong Koorie peoples and communities that are moving forward with confidence and ambition in the 21st century but originating from a 60,000-year history.

Community artists and craftspeople from around Victoria work with shop KOORIE to promote and sell their products. Some of the artists and craftspeople that we worked with included Uncle Oswald Egan from Robinvale, Mitchell Chilly and Uncle Arthur Kirby from Mildura, Glenda Nicholls from Sale and Georgina Alexandra from Melbourne.

The shop KOORIE team also works actively with the Koorie Heritage Trust's Collection team to produce products that showcase the Trust's unique collection.

shop KOORIE continues to regularly sell products to government departments, local councils, universities and government schools.

Venue Hire

Surrounded by the largest collection of Koorie art and artefacts in Australia and overlooking the Birrarung (Yarra River) on one side and Federation Square on the other, the Koorie Heritage Trust's venue hire rooms promote and support the diversity of Victorian Aboriginal peoples and celebrates the strong and continuing contemporary culture.

Located on Levels 1 and 3 of the Yarra Building, and designed by one of Australia's largest multi-award winning architectural and design firm, Lyons Architecture, in collaboration with Indigenous Architecture and Design Victoria, the rooms provide a unique and popular venue for meetings, launches, workshops and seminars. The rooms accommodate up to 150 standing guests in an immersive Aboriginal experience and in a unique Koorie setting.

The rooms are utilised by both community and non-community organisations.

Cool place. We hired a conference room. Glad we did. Great space for up to 60ish. Amazing Aboriginal artefacts and art. Loved the local language on the toilet door!

Observers

The Koorie Heritage Trust is a proud participant in the Observership Program. Modelled on a similar program that operates in the United States, the Observership Program places talented professionals on non-profit boards for a period of 12 months as Observers. It is a tool to engage emerging community leaders, giving participating non-profit boards an opportunity to mentor the next generation of leaders and to engage new people in the work of their organisations.

After the program was launched in Melbourne, three Indigenous leaders were recruited to sit on the Koorie Heritage Trust Board as Observers in 2017. In 2018-19, the Trust welcomed the following Indigenous Observers:

- Sheree Lowe (to December, 2018)
- John Kumeran (to December, 2018)
- Josh Lloyd (from January, 2019)
- Kieran Ironfield (from January, 2019)

Board Committees

Audit and Risk Management Committee
The Audit and Risk Management committee ensures the integrity of the Koorie Heritage Trust's accounts and financial statements, monitors internal and external audit functions, and establishes and maintains internal accounting controls and appropriate risk management systems. Members of the Audit & Risk Committee are:

- Peter Nash (Chair)
- Ian Hamm*
- Shannon Faulkhead*
- Tom Mosby*
- Peter O'Connell (from August, 2018)

Staff

As an Aboriginal organisation, the Koorie Heritage Trust seeks to encourage greater participation of Indigenous people (Koorie and the broader Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities) in the life of the Trust. To achieve this, the Trust promotes increased recruitment of Aboriginal people and aims to improve retention rates of Aboriginal employees. In 2018-19, more than 50% of Trust employees identified as Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander.
